

FROM THE DESK OF EDITOR IN CHIEF

Research in medical science aimed for rigorous investigation to advance knowledge and understanding of health, disease and medical treatment. It comprises basic, clinical and translational research for discovering mechanisms of disease, developing new diagnostics, therapies and vaccines and improving patient care. Ethical considerations, funding and collaboration among scientists, clinicians and institutions are crucial. Medical research drives innovation, improves health outcomes and is essential for addressing national and global health challenges. This editorial board is whole heartedly working to improve this aspect. By the grace of almighty will try to improve the standard of this journal devoted for publishing research articles.
