

We are happy to inform you that first issue of the journal is now online. Though it is a new journal and not well known to people, we faced difficulties to get standard papers. Even review process took long time. We hope that publication of this journal will be regular and readers & researchers will submit their paper to continue the publication of this journal.

Two research paper, one review article and one conceptual paper are included in this issue. Due to delayed feedback concerning post-review revision from authors, some articles are not included in this issue. We expect fast response from authors if their article is sent back to them to edit.

Thanks to all who were involved in review process, technical/functional support and authors who sent their papers to this journal.
